Ten Commandments for Wives

Just Where, Ladies, Do You Fall Short?

FLORENCE, Italy (WNS)—"If a wife does not look after her husband properly, some other woman will," the Countess of Boisemont reminded members of the Hostess Club here.

She recommended that every wife spend never less than three hours per day looking over her husband's clothes, arranging for his beauty needs and taking care of his other comforts.

COMMANDMENTS

"Let each lady write her own Ten Commandments of proper care for her man, and let her follow them sincerely," advised the Countess.

As a starter she suggested the following list:

1. Men generally have heavy feet. Make sure that your husband's shoes look, fit and feel like a glove. It is your duty to keep them polished and in good repair every day.

2. A man behaves with more gallantry when his jacket and trousers are well pressed. Never let a wrinkle appear on his suit any more than you would on your face. Daily pressing is a pressing need. Do it yourself.

3. Never let your husband wear the same shirt or underwear for more than one day. When he takes these things off, let them gently disappear into the laundry hamper. Then set out fresh garments for him so that he won't have to go searching.

4. Never pick out your husband's necktie, but admire his taste and hint that he should frequently add to his collection. The necktie is the real "jewel" that each man wears with his outfit and demands his individuality.

5. Encourage your husband to visit the barber every week, or learn to trim his locks yourself. If he will look more distinguished with a moustache or beard, encourage him to try one.

6. You adore it when he buys you perfume, so do the same for him. Men have an inferiority complex about buying perfumes and beauty creams for themselves, but they love them when they find them on their dressing tables.

7. Teach him the fun of carrying his handkerchief in his sleeve, wearing gay silk scarves and adopting cummerbunds, capes and berets as gay accessories to his otherwise dull outfit.

8. If he has no personal valet, run his bath for him, scrub his back, help him on with his clothes and massage and brush his hair. Romance is given an added stimulus by such personal little gestures.

9. Encourage him to use fantasy in his bedwear—silk pyjamas or a kimono for a robe.

10. Admire him, admire him, admire him. Admire his figure, admire his beauty, admire his dress, admire everything about him and he will blossom as the rose.

"Two months of this diet has changed many a near divorce into a thrilling second honeymoon," concluded the Countess.

Sweden's population totalled 7,434,000 at the start of 1959, an increase of 41,000 in 12 months.

Hospital Workers Lauded

Finest examples of charity to be found today are in work done by volunteers in hospitals.

This was stated by Dr. E. N. Boettcher, chairman of medical advisory committee of Gorge Road Hospital, Wednesday evening at the annual meeting of the hospital's auxiliary.

He explained: "Volunteer aid is the giving of oneself to the patient. To do this the worker must have a sincere love for mankind which is so necessary in the recovery of the afflicted. The need is great for this type of volunteer."

Dr. Boettcher spoke of long-term plans now being discussed by the board for the eventual building of a new wing, expansion of the occupational and physiotherapy departments, establishment of convalescent and rehabilitation care for the injured and chronically ill patients and general nursing care and "out-patient" care for those patients who could carry on in their homes.

He was introduced by Mrs. E. R. Owen and thanked by Mrs. J. Naysmith.
